send it at once, big or little." Many Cincinnati Republicans have received these appeals, and whether they were sent in order to make use of a surplus postage stamp fund or in the deluded belief that loyal Republicans would really "give up" is not known. One lifelong Cincinnati Republican, a man who voted for Lincoln and served four years in Lincoln's armies, received one of the circulars and was so angry that he rushed at once to a neighbor, also a Republican. "Look here what some idiot has had the effrontery to send me," he cried, waving the circular. "Oh, you are not the only one," replied his friend, as he pulled a copy of the selfsame circular from his pocket, "all the boys are getting them." But the nerve displayed in this indiscriminate solicitation of campaign funds is secondary to the startling reasons given why the money is needed. Local Democratic leaders, even while appointing incompetents to the waterworks department, and conspiring to get control of the House of Refuge, have always expressed their horror of machine politics. Build up a Democratic machine 'Never; perish the thought! And parenthetically it might be remarked that this is all that did perish. Now listen to the reasons given by Democratic Committeemen Garber and Finley for the necessity of a big campaign fund. The circular says:

"Do you know what a victory in mean the capture of four state offices, WITH ALL THE ATTENDANT PAT-RONAGE. It means that we shall carry the state again at the next election in 1908 and that the Democratic state ticket from governor down will be elected."

Pretty plain, that, isn't it? First of Bloomsburg, one of the leading our Democratic brethren would carry this election; thus they would get the patronage. With the patronage they would build up their machine. With East Bloomsburg by a Pennsylvania the machine they would carry the stronger machine, more elections, more patronage, more but what's the use?

> Sort of an endless chain scheme. Lovely plan, and to think that it is all going to pot for the lack of a few Star.

> Perfectly Safe. Patient-Doctor, I'm horribly afraid worry for an instant, my friend. Til see to that all right,"

COMPLAINT MADE TO STATE

Hearing on Alleged Discrimination of Coal Cars.

FRÍDÁY, NOVÉMBER 23.

The Haring-Wilson Coal Company and the South Massillon Coal Company Have Filed Papers With State Railroad Commission.

The alleged discrimination on the part of the Weeling & Lake Erie Railroad Company against the South Massillon Coal Company and the Haring-Wilson Coal Company, both of Massillon, in the service of empty coal cars at the mines of these companies will come up for hearing before the state railroad commission at 10 o'clock Fri day, November 23. F. F. Taggart is manager of the South Massillon Coal Company and J. C. Haring is manager of the Haring-Wilson Coal Company.

The complaints against the railroad company were filed with the state railroad commission by Attorney William A. Lynch on Tuesday. He represents each company. The causes lead ing up to the complaints have arisen during the past three months, when the assertion is made that the Massillon Coal Mining Company has been favored with cars to operate its mines at the discrimination of the other companies in the Massillon district. The complaints are not intended to represent any condition outside the Massi!lon district.

The first complainant is the Haring-Wilson Coal Company and the defendant company is the Wheeling & Lake Erie Railroad Company. The complainant says it owns the Haring-Wilson mine in Stark county, which since September 1 last has had a producing capacity of two hundred tons per day, and that it had a market for the entire capacity, but that the railroad company has furnisht cars sufficient only for the transportation of an average of ninety tons per day.

The railroad company in response to demand for more cars claimed that it had not sufficient to meet all the reduirements, but the complainant represents that such cars as were available were not distributed proportionpeated protests the railroad company Coal Mining Company and the Wheeling & Lake Erie Coal Mining Company, and that further, that in the cars furnisht the defendant company discriminated against the complainant by furnishing cars not equipt with air brakes and furnishing to the two favored companies an undue proportion of cara so equipt.

The complaint of the South Massillon Company is substantially the same as that of the Haring-Wilson Company.

Discussions at the Food Congress Held in Paris.

In a discussion of the general topic of feeding at the meeting of the food congress in Paris, Prof. Landonza quoted various statistics on this subject. These show that among the working classes of Paris the men spend on an average one franc and fourteen centimes a day for solid nourishment and one franc and twenty-four centimes a day for drink.

The women are almost always underied, the cost of their food averaging only from one franc to one franc and sixteen ceutimes a day, as compared with two francs and thirty-eight centimes for the men, and in consequence they age early. The professor asserted that nearly all laborers eat too much meat, the proportion in expense being sixty per cent, while in nutritive value it is only eight per cent.

Prof. Hallopean, dealing with brain workers, advised them to take a nap after lunch and a long sleep after dinner. He suggested that a good plan would be to prolong the latter rest to the company went into court and seabout 1 o'clock in the morning, when a man could wake up fresh and be in the best disposition for furnishing

The attack will be centered upon those grain handling interests which it is declared force the buying price of farm products to the minimum and then inflate it to the maximum.

As a result of the conference Saturday it is expected that a delegation will be sent to the convention of the American Federation of Labor at Minneapolis on November 12 to appeal for support to the national body. All the reputable labor organizations will also be called upon to assist the farm-

IMPORTANCE OF ONE VOTE

It is Possible for the Same Thing to Happen Again...

The Wooster Republican gives the following excellent reasons for every Republican casting his vote at the coming election, and the advice contained in the article applies with equal force to the voters of the Eighteenth district:

One vote in the United States Senate annexed Texas to the United States. Mr. Hannegan, of Indiana, cast that vote. One vote in the Indiana legislature elected Mr. Hannegan to a seat in the Senate. That vote was cast by Madison March, of Steuben county ind. Hence one vote cast by a private citizen at an Indiana election annexed Cexas, led to the Mexican war, the acquisition of California, New Mexico, Utah, aided hundreds of millions of gold and hundreds of millions of wealth of lands to the country.

Medina County Farmers Object to Grade Crossing.

A special from Medina to the Cleveland Plain Dealer, dated October 30, says: Angered by the action of the officials of the Baltimore & Oh'o railroad who built a track across a road near Lodi against their wishes, nearly If over one no change passes we may one hundred Medina county farmers took their teams this afternoon and tipt three ."dinky" engines and five cars into the ditch. been brewing for several months and today's demonstration on the part of the farmers is the culmination. The Baltimore & Ohio is shortening its main line thru the county, reducing grades, and some of the improvements do not suit the farmers. The crossing of this particular highway is at a grade of some five or six feet above the old level of the country road.

Last summer an injunction was se cured to stop the building of the crossing as planned and the work at that point was at a standatill. Last week cored a dissolution of the restraining order. The county commissioners say the injunction was dissolved without their knowledge.

Taking advantage of the court's action, the railroad company on Sunday Kaif, Thos. rusht their construction over the debated crossing, and then placed three track to prevent any attempt that might be made to tear up the rails.

The farmers were too angry at the way the company had stolen a march on them to let any amount of rolling prisal. The proposition accordingly was made and approved by the township trustees that they take their farm

Ropes were attached to cars and engines and all were toppled into the 🙎 ditch.

That done the farmers returned home. They feared, however, that the company might send men to put its rolling stock back on the track, and so the farmers picked twenty-five men from among their number to guard the crossing thru the night. These men have rifles and dynamite, and are determined the company will not thwart Protective Colors of Animula.

I seem to trace a faint clew to the connection between the protective coloring and the mind in the intense desire of the fox to remain concealed and unseen. That this is a possible theory we infer from the fact that a blind animal does not change color. Put a dozen minnows into an ordinary white wash hand basin and they will in a very short time be of a pale color. be tolerably certain that it is blind.-From Dale's "The Fox."

POLITICAL POINTS

None but a ballot cast counts. Don't lose your ballot for two years.

Absentee voters amount to nothing in support of protection and prosperity, Roosevelt and Republicanism.

Auglaize county has had Hoskins for prosecutor for several years with the laws for morality not enforced. Ohio does not want such a man.

Both the primary election and the bank inspection bills were killed by Garber Democrats in the state senate. Who can trust that crowd with such a record?

The candidates on the Ohio Republican state ticket stand for the same high and noble principles which have guided President Roosevelt. Vote for every Republican.

The Democratic party has but one national issue—free trade disguised as tariff reform. The two trials given the pet theory of the Democrats since the Civil War proved too disastrons to the highway. risk another.

Not one Republican in all Ohio, not one Roosevelt voter who would vote as Roosevelt requests should neglect to notice that the Roosevelt Republican ticket is second on the state ballot this year, not first.

An Ohio Republican who is no enough of a Republican to vote the straight party ticket this year is merely a political abstraction. As such he will be resposible if we repeat the result of 1892-96 in 1906.

Doing Democratic campaign work is nothing new for Gompers. He tried it in 1893 and '94 and '95 and '96, and often since. He is nothing but a Democrat and cannot fool his Republican followers as fast as they find

Why did the Democratic bosses who ran the state senate insist upon having an illegal committee to investigate Cincinnati when they had the chance to have a constitutional committee, which the Republicans voted for, and the Democrats might readily Hearstism means hatred as his prime political principle. His own chosen speakers not only admit this, but glory in it, yet Ohio Democratic organs praise him and are ready to fall into line with him, and will count as encouragement any Democratic or disguised Democratic success in Ohio.

Every time that Bryan or any other Democrat or disguised Democrat tells Republican voters in the name of Roosevelt not to vote for Republican candidates, they wrong Roosevelt. They might as well say that Roose. relt dees not mean what he says when he says that he wants Republicans

The individual voter who makes sure of his own ballot early in the day is certain of so much. If he gets a neighbor to vote right, he is certain of so much more. There is no other general election for two years. The work now must be done by school districts and subdistricts and neighborhoods. Township and ward committees cannot get out the vote, still less can city, county or state committees. It is up to you individually. .

Mr. Bryan is reported to have been disgusted, so cool and unresponsive were the recent Colorado audiences that he addressed. That is the state which was almost solid for him in 1896, and one of the four northern states to give him electoral votes in 1900. Since Bryan's second defeat, Colorado has enjoyed a high degree of prosperity with which it knows Bryan had nothing to do, hence the lack of enthusiasm for him. Prosperity in Ohio has been scarcely less marked and Boss Garber will find that there will be as little heartfelt enthusiasm in the Buckeye state vote as there is in the Centennial state for Bryan and Bryanism.

ROOSEVELT VOTERS THE ONLY ROOSEVELT MEN.

This will be the last general electin in Ohio until the vote for president and governor and everything else, two full years from now. The citizen who shall be too lazy to get to the polls on Tuesday, Nov. 6, 1906. can kick nobody but himself for any consequences that come from his own neglect of his plain duty. The Republican who for any reason shall fail to vote on that day, and shall fail to help in getting out the vote of all others who would vote with him, will be personally responsible for such neglect and all its evil results.

Multitudes of men have been praising Roosevelt, have been saying that he was their kind of president, and have been declaring day by day that he ought to be sustained by the people. Such men, in particular, have a duty of their own to do. If they fail in it now, let them forever after hold their peace. He is no real Roosevelt man who shall not be a Roosevelt voter at this election. To profess friendship for Roosevelt and his views, and fail or refuse to do what Roosevelt desires, is false friendship. Roosevelt's request is for votes for Republicans. especially for every candidate for congress. They will help, not binder, the last half of his term, as his political opponents would surely obstruct him.

Canton and Alliance both had Democratic meetings last night. It is understood that there were fully forty persons at the Canton meeting and "nearly a hundred" at the one in Alliance. Thus appear some of the results of the extra efforts put forth by the Democracy towards cutting down the Republican majority in this vicinity.

Chairman arvey C. Garber, of the Democratic state executive committee, made a significant remark on his return to his desk at state headquarters in Columbus the other day after conducting the Bryan speaking tour. "Much more will depend on these who do not vote than on those, who do in this election," Mr. Garber is quoted as having said. In other words the Bryan trip has revealed to the Democratic managers that the result of the election is much in doubt as far as they are concerned, and that it will as a matter of fact depend on the stayat-home vote. If the Republicans generally vote it is all off with Democratic hopes. On the other hand, if Republicans are apathetic there may he a different story to tell. It is needless to point out the responsibilities which every Republican voter in the state must face or to attempt to show the advisability of individual exertion in order to get out a full vote.

In conformity with the proclamation of the President of the United States, I, Andrew L. Harris, governor of Ohio, do hereby designate Thursday, the 29th day of November, as Thanks glying day.

Remembering that it is more blest to give than to receive, let us evidence the sincerity of our appreciation by sharing generously with those who have been less fortunate and thus illustrate one of the sublime principles of our faith.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto subscribed my name, and caused the great seal of the state of Ohio to be affixt, at Columbus, this 28th day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and six and in the one hundred and thirty-first year of the independence of the United States of America.

Side Lights on the First Jew Offered a Seat In the United States Cabinet

Prodigiously Busy Man, Who Seems Never to Have Played-Belongs to Type of Men Who Always Get There-Highly Cultured and Most Learned, His Hobby Is Hard Work-A Sample of His Diplomacy and Historical Knowledge

By ROBERTUS LOVE. SCAR SOLOMON STRAUS, who is to be secretary of commerce and labor, is the first Jew ever honored by a president of the United States with an invitation to sit in the cabinet. Mr. Straus, however, has been highly honored before by Mr. Roosevelt and by three other presidents. When he was only thirty-six years of age, in 1887, President Cleveland appointed him minister to Turkey. Mr. Straus was an active Democrat, but nevertheless President Harrison requested him to remain at Constantinople. Large business interests at home demanded his attention, and he retired. In 1897 President McKinley prevailed upon Mr. Straus to go once more as minister to Turkey. In 1902 President Roosevelt appointed him to the vacancy in the permanent court of arbitration at The Hague, caused by the death of ex-President

Mr. Straus never ran for an office in his life. Though always taking a lively interest in politics, he never has entist rather than a politician. Value of His Historical Knowledge.

While at Constantinople during his second period of service there Mr. Straus found opportunity to make excellent use of his historical knowledge. Probably not one American in a million is aware that in a certain treaty between President Washington and the bey of Tripoli there is a declaration that the United States government does not recognize any one particular form of religion above another. Minister Straus knew of this paragraph. When affairs in the Philippines became troublesome and it was very desirable to have the large Mohammedan population of the islands on our side Minister Straus went to the sultan of Turkey, whom the adherents to that faith recognize as their high priest, and requested that his imperial majesty use been a politician. He is a political sci- his influence with the Mohammedans in favor of the United States.

The sultan passed the most learned man in the president's word to a powerful representative of official family. It was said of him in Mohammed's followers in the archi-Constantinople for the second time, "Mr. Straus has probably the most exresentatives abroad."

Seems Never to Have Played.

From his boyhood Mr. Straus seems to have been a prodigiously busy man. Many Americans who rise to high place find plenty of time to lonf around and tell stories—Abraham Lincoln, for instance. Though by no means an austere ascetic, Oscar Straus seems never to have played. On the other hand, ty of the missionary schools establishhe has not had time to stand on the housetops, point to hunself and tell tan's domains had been closed by orother men how to succeed. spare time in yachtlag, automobiling or riding to hounds. They must have hobbies. The Straus hobby is hard work. A brief account of his life may serve to prove this.

Lazarus Straus was the father of three sons, all of whom have become noted. Isidor has been in congress and helped to write the Wilson tariff bill. Nathan for years has furnished sterilized milk to thousands of New York babies, no doubt saving many lives, and he is prominent in the politics of his city. Oscar, as the old fashioned biographer would say, is "the subject of this sketch." All are great merchants in New York and Brooklyn. Lazarus Straus was a farmer in Bavaria, where his sons were born. He espoused the cause of the revolution of 1848 and some time later was compelled to take refuge in America. He settled in a little Georgia town, where Oscar Straus passed most of his boyhood. At the close of the civil war the family removed to New York, where the father established the house of L. Straus & Sons, large Importers of pottery and glassware. Oscar, the youngest son, entered Columbia university, partly paying his way by writing for the newspapers, for the elder Straus was not well to do at the time. In 1871 Oscar was graduated near the head of his class. He was class poet, Brander Matthews, the well known literary man and educator, who recently took a foremost part in the crusade for simplified spelling. Young Straus studled law and two years later began the practice. He was one of the first lawyers in the United States to prosecute a railroad for making illegal freight rates for the benefit of favored patrons. In this case he worked so bard that his weight was reduced to ninety-nine

"Then," says Mr. Straus, "I decided that I would go to a doctor. The physician told me that my only chance to live lay in changing my work. My father and brothers had wanted me to go into their firm, and I went."

Sought Recreation In Reading and Writing

It was only a change of work, not a cessation. Oscar Straus took charge of an important branch of the business, which had grown to enormous proportions. He determined to read all the letters received and answered per- one pound of butter, one pound of laisonally the most important. This kept | sins stoned and chopped, six eggs, a him at his desk from about 9 30 to 6 o'clock every day. Every evening in tablespoonful of mace, one desserthis library at home he sought recreation in reading and writing. He was too busy to go out to the libraries for books needed in his historical researches, so be sent out and bought them, keeping agents constantly on the watch for valuable works. Thus he accumulated what is regarded as one of the finest private libraries in the United States.

But with all his devotion to business and to literary labors Mr. Straus always found time to take an active part in the various movements for civic betterment which were in progress from year to year. Through magazine articles, lectures and addresses his attitude in relation to many important matters was made known. He served as trustee for the Baron de Hirsch relief fund for Russian immigrants. He beloed to organize and was president of the National Civic federation. He was one of the founders of the Young Men's Hebrew association.

A list of all the societies-political. charitable, civic and literary-to which Mr. Straus belongs and in which for years he has been prominent would look like a catalogue.

Never a Pyrotechnic Politician.

Its comparative Straus never has been a pyrotechnic politician and that he has preferred his library and his home life to the ap- tiques" are manufactured on shorter plause of listening multitudes. Nor can we say that here is an example of the scholar in politics. Mr. Straus is the scholar in statesmanship. It may be doubted with very good reason that Mr. Straus could be elected constable of a township through his own appeal to the voters. His brand of personal magnetism was not made for practical

New York, which knows Oscar Straus, was not surprised when the president announced his selection as secretary of commerce and labor. It is said that President McKinley once considered him for secretary of state retiring. Mr. Straus belongs to the type of man who always gets there. He has had no struggle to succeed. He just kept on at work. Fortune gave him the facilities for working, and nature endowed him with a taste for it. The newspaper work which he did during his college course to help along his expenses also helped along his education as a writer and a student of affairs. From the time he began law practice he has trodden financial beds of roses. His firm had so much business from the start that Mr. Straus broke down from overwork at the age of thirty and had to change his occupation as we have seen. Then the crockery business made millions for him and the dry goods business other millions.

Having succeeded in law, literature, diplomacy, philanthropy, finance and business, may we not reasonably ex- brightly, "or you'd never have brought pect him to do well as a cabinet of-

She instituted a series of afternoon teas, to which she invited all her large circle of friends and acquaintances. and soon became noted for her delicious tea. The tea was not made in the ordinary way, but was sweetened when John Hay had some thought of with rock candy, a maraschine cherry being added to each (up. She next made a specialty of caket and beverages in which she could use whipped cream to which vanilla flavoring had been added. This gave to both tea and chocolate a most tascinating fla vor. These essences were changed from time to time and included almond and orange flavoring

A great deal of interest was aroused by the success of these afternoon teas Questions began to be asked by ber numerous friends, and it can readily be seen how valuable an agent she proved to that wholesale house, for •he popularity of their specialties became established without any expensive advertising or booming.

It is a wonderful gift for anyone to possess, and Dr. Kutchin's diagnostic powers bore created wonder throughout the country. He adopted the following plan, which is peculiar to the large hospitals, and is not and never has been the practice of country doctors, viz he carefully notes the symtoms of the patient, and aggerrants the condition of the internal organs, all of which he carefully records to his resister for future reference. Lung and other Medical and Surgical Institutions, aveling thousands of miles, both by land and sea, expending thousands of dollars, approving every advantage within his command, and devoting the best years of his life to become incroughly familiar with his profession in all its branches, LATEST DISCOVERIES AND IMPROVEMENTS.

Dr. Kntchin has relived the most approved instruction in Analytical and Microscopical xaminations of the Blood, brine, etc. which are now considered indispensible to a correct lagnosis in many diseases. There are many diseases which physicians in common practice do to usually treat, and are, therefore, seldom prepared with necessary and costly outfit to examine prrectly, or treat with success; such cases, therefore, would do well to call at once and learn per true condition, and whether the doors of Hope are yet open, or forever closed against them. FACTS FOR MEN CF ALL AGES.

By reason of false modesty the youth of our rand are kept in ignorance of the runnous results which certain solitary indiscreet practices produce. These vices when persisted in exactually undermine the constitution inducing nervous detal ty and premature decay. Dr. Kutchin has for many years enjoyed the distinction of being the most successful and celebrated specialist for the treatment and cure of these affections. You may consult him with complete confidence. Of all the maladies that afflict mankind there is probably none about which physicians in general practice know so little.

A well balanced ration is made up of such foods as will maintain a proper ratio between the fat, boue and muscle forming elements. Often food taken in this way fails to sustain one as long as less of a more mixed variety.

In the middle west and the southern states, where the grape is extensively grown and much cherished, it becomes necessary to protect the fruit from dirt and insect. One method of doing this is by slipping a small paper bag over the bunches of grapes while yet on the vines. This is a simple and convenient arrangement and brings good results. Any one can do it.

A farm once infested with quack grass is likely to become a source of contamination to other farms for miles around through the sale of straw or hay. We noted a case recently along this line, where hay containing quack grass was sold to the town liveryman. In view of the fact that many farmers bave manure from such places, it is easily seen how the pest could be spread far and wide.

The scarcity of help during this busy time makes the question of your sons' schooling a problem. As a rule, the country lad is quick and alert and will make good for his enforced absence from school if properly encouraged at home to lock at his education in the right way. Che who handles stock should not only be able to feed and care for them in the common, ordinary ways, but should be able to detect and recognize symptoms of disease and administer simple treatments in case of accident until competent help can be secured. Too often animals have to suffer from cold, neglect and unnecessary exposure. To be truly successful in the raising and handling of stock a man must have a warm spot in his heart for animals and be willing to bear some unpleasant things on their account. It is not only common humanity, but has a value in dollars and cents.

The man who is a jack at all trades, changing often from one thing to another, constantly altering his occupation and opinions, never gets anywhere in this world. The little he gains in one is lost in the changing to something else. So is this true of the farmer who is always changing the breed of his stock by taking up some fad or specialty. He never gets anywhere or has enough experience to make him an authority. Much valuable time is also lost in crop specialization unless one line is followed to the point of success or failure. Find out what. with your particular facilities, can be done best, then stick to it.

Some of the so called buttermilk re tailed in the cities and elsewhere has never even associated with a lump of butter. It is made of skim milk, it be ing claimed that a very good quality of buttermilk can be made by allowing the milk to just sour, then placing in a churn and agitating until the curd is broken up into very fige particles and reduced to a fine consistency. This buttermilk would hardly satisfy one who has been used to the good homemade kind, rich with particles of butter left after the churning. In the same way do some people delude themselves nto thinking that they can make maple sirup out of brown sugar, water and birch bark extract. It all goes to show the power of a name,

They have a new reason for raising turkeys down in Kansas. One man has discovered that a turkey is the best kind of a grasshopper machine, having in this way practically saved his alfalfa crop from destruction from the ravages of these insects. In this case the number of turkeys averaged about one to the acre. This manner of raising turkeys has several points in its favor if practical.

Like a bur under the saddle is that little thing which is out of repair and consequently ever a source of annoyance. There never seems any time in which to do the needed fixing, and it bobs up serenely at the most inconvenient times. To be sure, it doesn't take very long to mend a broken harness, brace up a teetery step, clean out a smoking chimney or straighten a rickety gate, but it is human nature to let it go until another time.

A Minnesota reader of these notes two years ago decided to quit the grain selling method of agriculture which is quite largely in vogue in his locality and go into the dairy business. We saw him the other day. He now has a dairy of fifteen cows and plans in the near future to increase it to thirty. His cream check for August, usually a short month, was $75. Under this system he has something coming in all the time, while his farm is increasing rather than decreasing in fertility.

For years past Maine has been known as one of the most successful potato raising sections of the country, and this year's output gives promise of still further clinching her claim in this particular. From Aroostook county alone, which is the center of this industry, there were shipped, during the year 1905, 6.694,071 Lushels of potatoes. So great are the output and demand that it is now proposed to put on a line of steamers from the nearest seaport town to relieve the badly congested rail traffic.

English medical authorities are responsible for the statement that conditions existing in some of the private slaughter houses and packing plants of that country surpass in filth and loathsomeness even the most highly colored statements of conditions existing in similar institutions in this country. While the shakeup that was given some packing plants in this country as a result of the passage of the pure food law was rather severe, it will after all result in definite and permanent benefit to the live stock and packing interests of the country.

Experiments which have been carried on the past season at the Iowa experiment station show that a ton of cobs as thrown from the chute of a great corn canning factory have the capacity to produce eleven gallons of alcohol, worth, on the basis of 20 cents per gallon, $2.20. Moreover, it has been also discovered that a ton of the green stalks will produce six gallons of alcohol. The cobs are easily ground to a pulp, and the process of producing the alcohol costs but 3 cents per gallon. This discovery will doubtless result in the utilization of what has beretofore been a valueless byproduct | children under sixteen years to do and all around nuisance.

Following a recent statement that a good quality of paper can be made from cornstalks comes one since to the effect that a good quality of print paper can be made from the stalk of the cotton plant, a mill for that purpose having been built in Texas. The fact cited simply goes to show that the idea of economy which pervades modern business and industrial methods holds it a part of poor management to allow anything to go to waste. Present tendencies would seem to indicate that the economic progress of the future will consist quite largely in utilizing that which has been heretofore wasted rather than in the discovery of new

A farmer well past middle age, who had worked hard and had, with the assistance of an equally industrious wife, accumulated a nice competence and who owned the old home farm free from debt, grew restless as a result of reading too many alluring real estate advertisements and after talking it over with his wife decided that they would list the farm for sale with the local real estate agent. Accordingly they had him come and look the farm over with a view to bringing out its strong points in an attractive advertisement. When the catalogue of the farm's merits was completed, including its fertile soil, unfailing supply of puis water, comfortable house, commotious barn and outbuildings, abun dant shade and fruitful orchard, the owner leaned back in his chair, raised his spectacles and asked the agent to read the advertisement over, that he and his wife might know how it sound ed. When the reading was done the old man was lost in thought for a min

The other day we had the privilege of witnessing the detailed maneuvers by which a spider, a little fellow, put a cricket of seven or eight times hi weight out of commission and elevated him to a point where he could feast on him at pleasure. The cricket, hopping around on the floor, in some way got his hind legs tangled in some threads of the spider's wet. It looked at first as though the little fellow would assist in releasing the intruder, and thus pre vent a general smashup of his web but far from it. He proceeded at ouce to attach two or three more threads to the cricket's legs, and while one, or even two, probably would not have been strong enough to lift the weight of the cricket from the floor, a half dozen or more threads, all elastic and ex erting a lifting tension, proved sufficient, and he was successfully lifted to a point where he could no longer reach the floor with his front legs. When the spider had got this advantage the fight was better than half won. It was an easy matter next to encircle him with numerous threads and bind him hand and foot, so that further struggle was impossible. When last seen the cricke: had been elevated to a distance of ter inches from the floor and the spide was extracting the juices from hi body at lelsure. A lesson that was derived from the spider's craft was th advantage which comes from bela cool and collected. He was always and calculated every move and the e fect it would have. His victim, on th other hand, while possessing a muc superior weight and strength, was baly scared and made a very ineffective exhibition of brute strength, whic' counted for nothing when matche with the spider's cleverness and skill

THE FLOCK OF SHEEP. We know of a progressive farme who makes it a practice to ship in and feed from 300 to 500 sheep every sum mer, marketing them about Christmas time. In addition to giving him profit of a dollar or more a head, he estimates that the flock more that pay for their keep in the service the render in the matter of clearing his stubble fields, fence rows and corners of troublesome weeds, it being his cus tom to turn the sheep into the field before the weeds have matured their erop of seed. Another farmer of the same type turned a flock of sheep into a field which had become badly infest ed with plantain, with the result that they made a clean sweep. One of the most serious problems connected wit! farming as at present generally con ducted is the matter of preventing the seeding of weeds after the tilled crops are laid by or the small grain is cut and thrashed. Early plowing is in a measure a preventive, but where it is possible to turn a flock of sheep into such fields an easy solution of the difficulty is provided. Such a system means better fencing, but this is bound to come as an essential phase of agriculture, in which better seed, better culture, blooded stock and flocks of sheep are bound to have a part.

CHILDREN AND COFFEE.

It is the best judgment of physicians and ordinary folk who have taken pains to observe that it is better for without coffee, while if it is used by those above this age it should be mild. There are thousands of homes all over the country where strong black coffee drunk two or three times a day is responsible for stunted growth, nervousness, irritability, sleeplessness and a general run down condition in both young and old. If parents note these conditions and are at a loss to account for them, they will often find the coffeepot responsible. Give the children plenty of rich milk or pure water and note results. A good rule to fol low in the drinking of coffee is to dis continue using it if the immediate abstaining from it causes distress or sense of lack. This condition shows plainly that it has a hold which it ought not to have.

HERO OF INDIAN FIGHT

Thrilling Incident In General James W. Forsyth's Career.

THE CHEYENNE'S LAST CHARGE.

Samous Indian Fighter's Gallant Stand Against Hundreds of Bloodthirsty Redskins In a Rifle Pit on Dry Fork in 1368-Hot Fight of a New York Herald. Small Band of Scouts.

The late Major General James W. out of Wyoming and came on a tour into northwest Kansas and threatened to sweep across the state.

construction of the Kansas Pacific railroad and began to raid and kill over a widespread territory of thriving settlements. Their deeds were such that no white man able to handle a weapon could stay the passion of revenge. General Forsyth, who was then a colonel, was on staff duty at Fort Wallace and had no followers, but in the excitement of the hour drummed up fifty unemployed scouts, mounted and equipped in their own wild fashion, and placed himself and men under military orders. The second in command was Lieutenant F. H. Beecher.

The command started for the scene of the most recent depredations reported at Fort Wallace and struck a trail on a branch of Republican river on days without seeing a redskin, but evidences pointed to their presence in the vicinity. They were trying to mislead and ambush the daring party. The afternoon of Sept. 16 Colonei Forsyth halted and established camp on Dry Fork, a stream with but a few inches of water. He was in the center of a plain skirted with hills and dotted with clumps of stunted trees. Late in the afternoon a band of several hundred Indians rushed from cover and attempted to stampede the animals that were grazing near the camp. They were repulsed, and Colonel Forsyth, assuming this demonstration to be the forerunner of a grand attack, moved his force to an island in the middle of the water course. The island bore a few low trees. The morning of Sept. 17 every man was alert before daylight, and not a moment too soon. The horses were tied in the bushes close at hand, and while several picked marksmen kept up a fire on the nearest Iudians their companions dug rifle pits and made a circle of them so as to receive the enemy on all sides.

The Indians kept up a steady fire with their improved repeating rifles and coolly took position in easy range, boys with bows and arrows stealing up very close by crawling on the ground. A shower of bullets and arrows soon announced the onslaught of numbers. Colonel Forsyth bade his men hold their fire and save ammunition for the trying moment. Not a shot was fired until the savages came within easy reach. Then a rapid fire was pened, sending down the front lines of warriors. At the head rode the war chief of the Chevennes, Roman Nose, a typical savage of the wilds. Roman Nose fell within a few feet of the rifle pits, and the painted bucks that survived the terrible volley of death shrank back appalled at the spectacle.

It was nearly midday, and Colonel Forsyth was not long in divining the true situation. He was surrounded by immense numbers of bloodthirsty redskins, which afterward proved to be Cheyennes and Sioux over 900 strong.

Colonel Forsyth and his little band kept up the fighting until dark, making a third charge at the close of the day. The losses in Forsyth's band had been severe. Every horse and mule had een killed in its tracks. Lieutenant Beecher was killed, four scouts were dead in their pits, a volunteer surgeon, Dr. Moore, was dead, and sixteen scouts were wounded. Colonel Forsyth had two wounds, one a shattered leg bone. It was evident that the distressed party would have to stand a siege. They were a hundred miles from the nearest post, Fort Wallace, and no other help was to be looked for. The ammunition supply, thanks to the self control of the men, was ample for some days. Of bread there was a lack, but steaks from the slaughtered animals would keep off famine for days. The gallant leader said to his survivors, "We will win the fight yet or sell our lives dearly in the attempt." Under his orders a spring was scooped out in the sand, a parapet was made all around the island, and the bodies of the dead horses and their saddles were placed so as to stop the bullets. Two scouts volunteered to try and steal through the Indian lines during the night and summon aid, and they left at midnight, crawling stealthily the first two miles. The following day the Indians kept up a hot fire on the imprisoned scouts and made several attempts to draw them from cover. On the second night of the siege two more volunteers started out for relief to insure communication with Fort Wallace in case the first two had met with disaster and the second should be more fortunate. The third day the savages kept up their demonstrations, but made no effort to charge the camp. On Sept. 23 the Indians disappeared without offering further battle.

On the night of the 21st the scouts that had left the island the first night of the battle reached Fort Wallace. Prompt action was taken by the commandan+ of the post and a mounted force pushed through to the camp by the 25th in time to save the lives of the LONG MISSING DIME.

Millionaire's Delight In Finding One He Lost Many Years Ago.

After an absence of sixty-five years Frank Bookwalter, a millionaire of Springfield, O., has returned to his old home in Fountain county. One of his first acts was to recover a silver dime that he had lost when he was five years old, just before he went away, says an Attica (Ind.) dispatch.

The dime had been given to him by his grandfather, and he was playing with it on the doorstep. He dropped it, and it fell into the crack of the stone steps. The boy's parents were poor when they went to Ohio. The boy had his own way to make, and he soon developed a love for mechanics. As a young man he made home inventions that made him wealthy, and now he is several times a millionaire. A few days ago he came back to his boyhood home.

His business and his wealth had not made him forget the dime he had lost sixty-five years before, and as soon as he got to the old house he offered a man $1 to get the dime. A crowbar was brought, the stone steps were lifted from their foundations, and the dime was recovered. One side of it was black, but the other was untarnished. Mr. Bookwalter said that the recovery of that dime gave him as much pleasure as had the making of many thousands.

Bracelets With Miniature Pendants. Many novelties in jewelry are being put forth and all designed only for persons with fat pocketbooks, says the New York Press. One is a new style of bracelet. It is a broad gold band from which a tiny portrait is suspended by a slender chain. The miniatures are about the size of a quarter dollar and are encircled with jewels. One disadvantage in wearing a bracelet of this sort is the possible theft of the miniature, which often is held far above its intrinsic value in that it is the portrait of sone one near and dear. But thieves scorn sentimentality and filch such souvenirs without compunc-

Clergyman to Compile a List of Persons Who Do Good. "The 'who's whos' in heaven will be those who care on earth," said the Rev. Charles P. Fagnani, professor in the Union Theological seminary, in an adaress under this title in the auditorium of the West Side Young Men's Christian association in New York the other afternoon. Dr. Faguani explained that in a book which he would add to. the growing "Who's Who" literature he would enter the names of persons who were something in the sight of heaven, says the New York Times.

To learn what there is to care about Dr. Fagnani advised the audience to read the newspapers. He gave an illustration by reading from a morning paper the story of a girl who was found wandering around the streets in Brooklyn crying: "A home! A home! Will somebody give me a home?" She was found by a policeman, whom she told that she had just been discharged from the Kings County hospital, where she had gone a year before to be treated for an injury received in a factory Her hair was torn from her head, and she was bald. Nobody wanted her now, she said.

"It is touching to see patients discharged from a hospital," Dr. Fagnani said. "Many of them are discharged before they are really well. The hospital accommodations have grown so slowly in proportion to the growth in population that the hospital physicians are compelled to discharge patients before they have recovered to make room for others. Before I would give a cent for the establishment of a library I would establish a dozen homes for convalescents, where patients discharged from hospitals could live until they could re-establish themselves in the community.

"Then, too, I would organize a v ilant committee to find things to ca about in this world. I would have th committee establish offices throughou the city, where clerks would look through the daily papers and collect incidents similar to that of the Brooklyn girl and investigate the circumstances. I would have automobiles connected with each of these offices, in which the clerks could go around the city investigating the stories printed in the newspapers."

In conclusion Dr. Fagnani said that it is to the credit of the United States | Jacqueminot, and the different shades that anybody who wants to can accomplish some good.

WOMAN CHEFS POPULAR.

One Has Been Appointed by Exclusive London Club.

Male chefs are aghast at the appoint ment of a woman chef at the Marlborough club, one of the most exclusive in London, says a special cable dispatch to the New York Sun. The fact that the appointment is experimental does not lessen the dismay, for, according to the secretary of the chefs' association, there is a growing tendency to employ female chefs. A wave of woall agree on the sloping shoulder effect men, he says, is overwhelming the culinary profession.

Nevertheless he declares that it will end in nothing. Women will never replace trained men in first class kitchens. Woman has not the temperament of the successful chef. She may have inspiration, but she lacks the power of organization. The preparation of a big dinner means continual anxiety for the chef. A crisis may occur at any moment. For instance, an entire course may be spolled. A man of iron nerve, will rise to the occasion, but most women, however skillful as cooks, will lose their heads. It is not fair to ask a woman to undertake more than plain cooking in small hotels. They do not have sufficient application to stand the exhaustive training for seven or eight years which male cooks undergo.

Farmer's Novel Way of Disposing Big Apple Crop.

If the home of Thomas C. Shaw in Jasper township, in Illinois, is not made the Mecca for his friends this fall and winter it will be because somebody will have put the "lid" on the cistern, says a dispatch from Fairfield,

Not being able to market a bountiful crop of apples from his 100 acre orchard at a price that would net him proper returns, he has dug a cistern ten feet in diameter and twelve feet deep, had it properly cemented and a pump installed and is making the entire apple crop into cider and storing it in the big underground jug.

The colors displayed for winter wearing, both in gowns and hats, are sufficiently beautiful to quite turn the head of the majority of women. Or if but two shades are chosen, surely there must be a third coloring introduced somewherethe eternal "touch of black" if nothing else.
